

Seminar Overview

The purpose of this seminar is to examine the relationship of the city of Alexandria to the sea during the Ptolemaic and Roman periods. On Mondays, the Classical Archaeology Seminar will present the research of scholars and their teams working in and around Alexandria examining the city, its maritime façade, and connections across the sea beyond Egypt. In the Maritime Archaeology Seminar on Thursdays, a detailed range of studies on the underwater excavations and material culture from the Portus Magnus will be presented. These will enable a 'deep dive' into the work of the Institut Européen d'Archéologie Sous-Marine (IEASM) and its research partners in the University of Oxford and beyond. IEASM has been surveying and excavating in the port since 1996, with the support of the Hilti Foundation, and is currently in the final stages of a new major publication on its work.

The symposium thus aims to bring together scholars working on diverse aspects of the relationship between the great city of Alexandria and its connections with the maritime world via its Portus Magnus.
