

Paper Review Workshop: Religions in the Greek and Roman World (c. 31 BC to AD 312)

This session is designed to consider the intellectual and pedagogical basis of the FHS paper, Religions in the Greek and Roman World (c. 31 BC to AD 312), and to explore possibilities for developing and enriching it.

The session will include four presentations covering different aspects of the formulation of the paper, its scope and limits, and the experience of teaching it and being taught it, from Nicholas Purcell, Martin Goodman, Dominic Dalglish and Thomas Gavin; there will be opportunity for wide-ranging discussion.
